REICHSTAG FIRE TRIAL ECHO

Dimitroff Still Held By Nazis.

THREATENS TO BEGIN HUNGER-STRIKE

Berlin, Yesterday. A threat to begin a hunger strike unless a decision concerning his detention is reached soon was made by the Bulgarian Communist, Dimitroff, who was acquitted at the Reichstag fire trial, during an interview with Reuter, to-day, which was the first granted to a British journalist since the end of the Reichstag trial.

He added that but for his old mother he would have started a hunger strike long ago.

Dimitroff is still uncrushed and unbowed, though his nerves are beginning to suffer under the constant confinement.

He made no complaint of his treatment, but is morbidly fearful that one day he will be removed to an underground cell and disposed of. — Reuter.

Mlle. Hilsz started her flight on January 26, from Villancoubly Aerodrome, but was forced down by bad weather and a high wind at Alexandretta, on January 29. After repairs to her machine she took off again on February 6, but was forced down again a few hours later at Deir-el-Zor, 176 miles from Aleppo, owing to bad weather.

JARDINE AND VERITY STOP COLLAPSE

Mahomed Nissar Not Playing

Madras, Yesterday.

The sensational collapse of the England eleven, who lost six wickets for 97 runs after C. F. Walters (59) and Bakewell (85) had added 111 for the first wicket, provided the feature of the first day's play in the third Test match against India here to-day.

D. R. Jardine, the English captain, stepped into the breach, and in an unbroken eighth wicket stand with Headley Verity, the Yorkshire slow bowler, added 73 runs to enable England to total 281 for 7 before the close of play. At the tea interval the score was 222 for 7.

Amar Singh, a fast bowler, caused the danger, taking five of the seven wickets to fall.

Bakewell played faultless cricket for his 85, scored out of 170 in 160 minutes.

He hit five boundaries.

India, who lost the first Test and forced a draw in the second, are without Mahomed Nissar, their "leg-theorist" owing to an attack of fever. He has been replaced by Mushtaq-Ali.

A crowd of 20,000 were present in exceedingly hot weather when Jardine won the toss and elected to bat.

ENGLAND WIN AT RUGBY

Ireland Beaten In Dublin.

ENGLAND'S BRIGHT CHANCES IN CHAMPIONSHIP

London, Yesterday.

The English Rugby team recorded their second triumph in the International Rugby Tournament to-day when they overcame Ireland by 13 points to 3 in Dublin.

Having beaten Wales in their first encounter of the season, England have now only to beat Scotland in the Calcutta Cup match at Twickenham to win the championship they last held in the 1929-30 season. In the 1931-2 season England, Wales, and Ireland tied for the title.

Morgan opened the scoring for Ireland when he went over for an unconverted try, but before the interval H. A. Fry, the Liverpool wing-forward, had twice crossed the Irish line, the second try being converted by Gregory to give England a lead of 8 points to 3.

Mickle scored England's third try in the second half and Gregory added the goal posts. — Reuter.

Scotland	1	0 1 6 13 0

Last season England beat Ireland by 17 points to 6 at Twickenham to record their 33rd win in a series of 62 games, three of which were drawn.

The next International will be staged next Saturday week at Murrayfield when Scotland meet Ireland.

MORE RIOTS IN PARIS

POLICEMAN SHOT DEAD BY COMMUNISTS

FIERCE FIGHTING IN STREETS.

800 ARRESTS AFTER POLICE CHARGE MOBS

Paris, Yesterday.

Rioting was renewed in Paris, yesterday evening when Communist and anti-Fascist demonstrators who massed in the working class centres, converged on the Place de la Republique which was occupied by 1,500 troops and police.

The Police and mobile guards stationed there repeatedly charged the Communists who showered the Police with missiles.

Shots were fired and one policeman was killed and a few wounded. The latter were removed in military ambulances but apparently they are not seriously hurt.

So far, 800 arrests have been made.

Communists were later reported to be sacking the Church of St. Ambroise. Barricades held up the Police lorries. Communists also sacked the Great Hall of the gare de l'Est. — Reuter.

37 POLICE INJURED.

Paris, Later.

The rioting here on Friday night was not so serious as Tuesday's outbreak, and order was almost entirely restored by day-break to-day. Police, however, were still patrolling the city throughout the day. Eight hundred arrests were made.

Police casualties numbered five seriously injured and 32 slightly injured. No deaths are so far known. The number of injured rioters has not been ascertained.

While one mass of Communists was struggling for possession of the Place de la Republique, other groups began looting, especially in the working class districts. The Police were handicapped by fog.

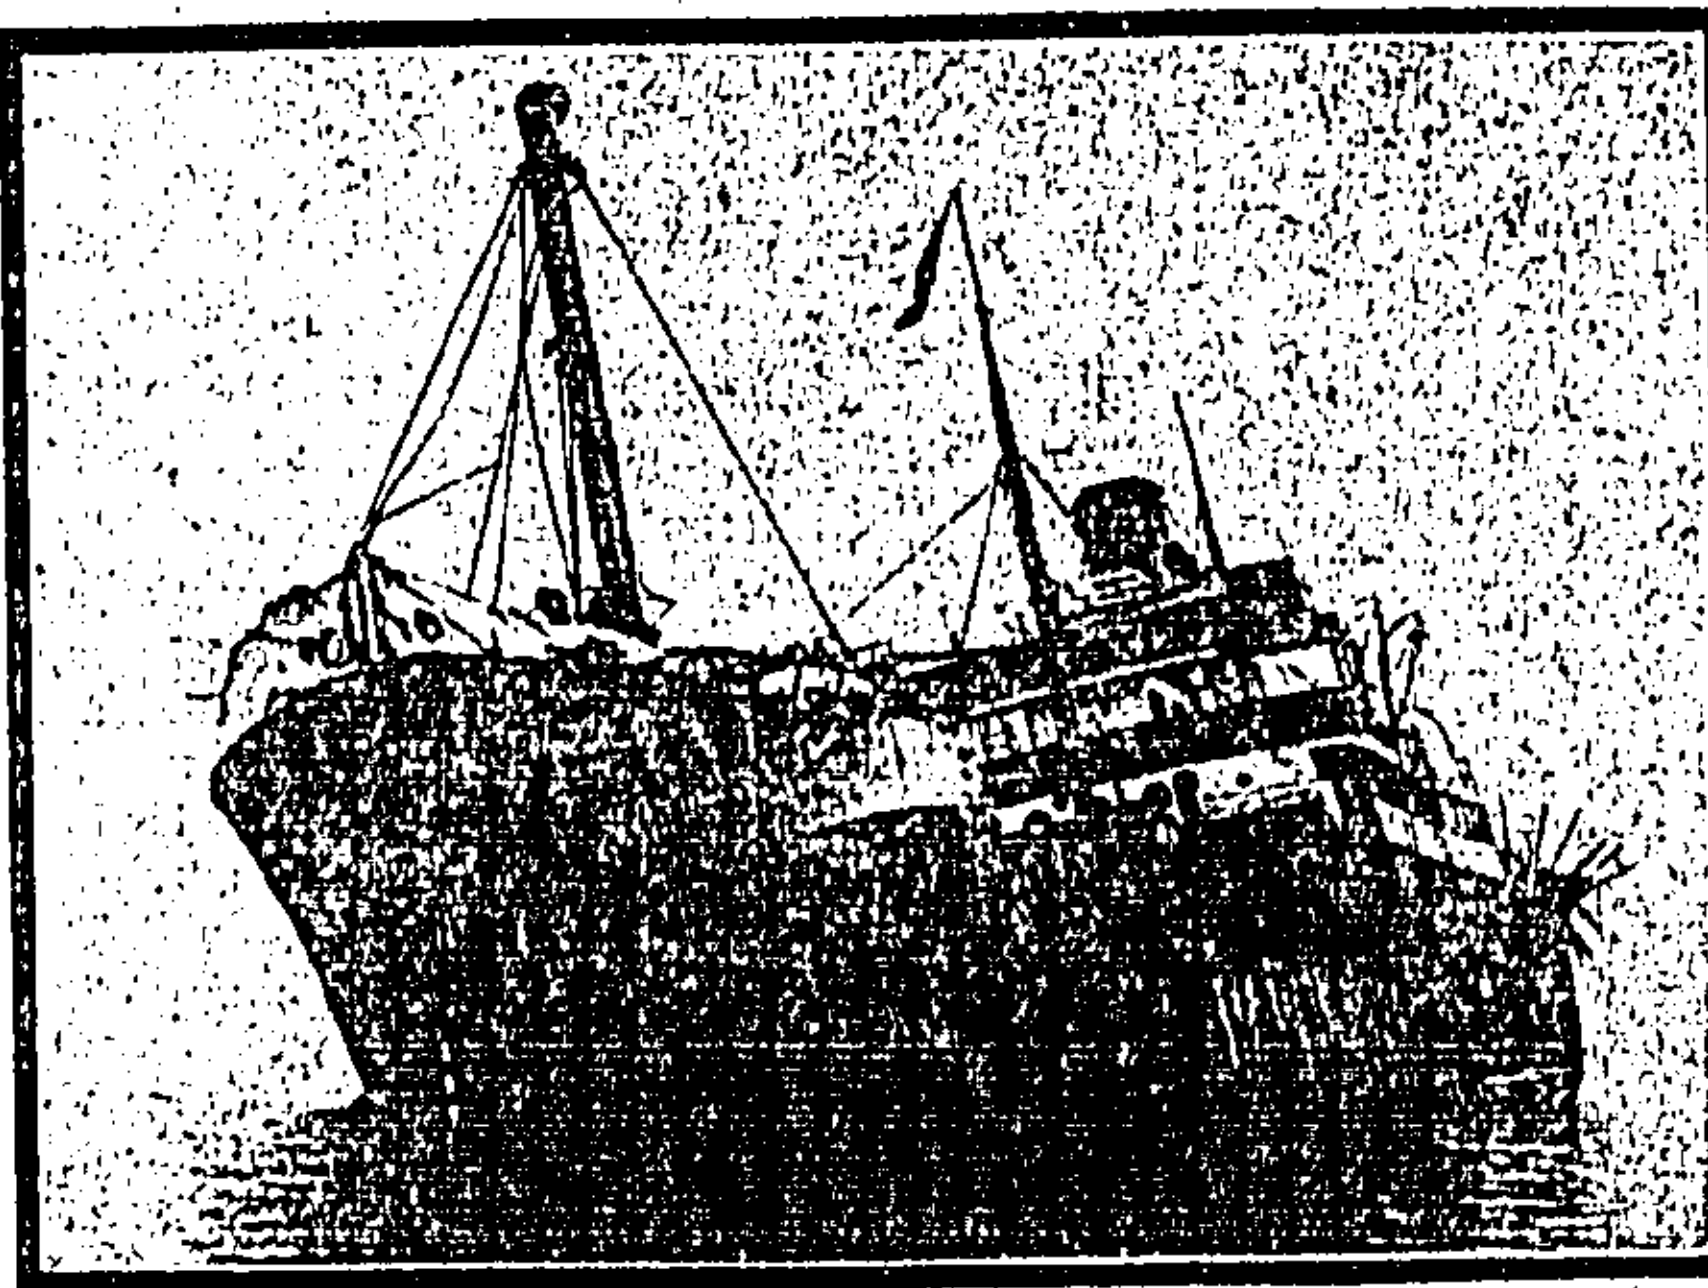

Motor-cyclists, as messengers, dashed to and fro while plainclothes police spies mingled with the rioters and reported their movements.

Whenever a spy left the Police Headquarters, he was kicked and cuffed to give a realistic appearance.

It was later learned that the rioters did not sack the Church of St. Ambroise, but they besieged an adjoining Police Station where four policemen had an unpleasant time until relieved by a cavalry charge. Three policemen were sent to hospital.

The rioters then scattered northwards to Belleville and Montmartre where the pursuers were harassed by missiles thrown from windows.

A Reuter's correspondent, aboard a police car, had an exciting time. Policemen who jumped out to clear away barricades were met with a

GOLD POURS INTO AMERICA

Canada Diverts Metal To New York.

HUGE FINANCING PLANS OF TREASURY

New York, Yesterday. Newspapers here give prominence to a report that Canada is diverting gold to the United States, $500,000 worth of which arrived here yesterday.

Arrivals are also reported from Mexico, London and Paris, but what is most significant was the drop in ear-marked gold here to a paltry U.S.$11,000,000, the smallest total since 1925.

According to the Herald Tribune, the new Treasury financing plans were discussed by the New York Federal Reserve Bank yesterday, and involve something extraordinary. Some observers predict the conversion of the U.S.$1,000,000,000 Fourth Liberty Bonds, or fresh borrowing, perhaps U.S.$2,000,000,000 maturing in 10 years. — Reuter.

Chapter XVIII. — THE AVALANCHE.

(By GERALD BURRARD.)

AT Geoffrey's command both Sher Khan and Jogaroo shoved their turban and cap respectively round the edge of the rock. Almost immediately a bullet from the "Tiger's" rifle passed between the two headgear, and a second later Geoffrey's .240 spoke. Geoffrey Thompson made to reload from his magazine after firing, and had fired in return. He saw the dust fly from just below where Thompson was lying half hidden, and quickly lifted his head above the "Tiger's" head. Never had he had such an anxious aim. So much depended upon this shot. The "Tiger" had probably failed to spot him on the first shot, as his attention had been distracted by the Pathan and Jogaroo, but he would now be on the look-out. Further, after firing his left barrel, Geoffrey would have to move to reload, and this movement would give him away just as a similar movement on the "Tiger's" part had shown Geoffrey his mark.

Geoffrey could see his head clearly just above the "Tiger's" head. His right arm was pressed against the rock and his fingers gripped the fore-end of his rifle. He held his breath and was about to make that quick and sudden squeeze with his trigger-finger which is the hallmark of the first-class game shot when he saw a tiny puff of smoke or dust and a bullet passed his ear with a vicious crack. The "Tiger" had seen him. He saw the jerk of his enemy's hand and arm as he flicked open, and home the bolt, but before this flick was quite complete Geoffrey snapped his left barrel. There was another sudden movement in that heap of rock, and then the sun flashed on something bright. But this was not an instantaneous flash. Something continued to shine almost as do distant windows in a sunset, and there were no more movements. Geoffrey seized the glasses and, forgetful of ricks, exposed his whole head.

But risks were over. The sun was reflected by the barrel and telescope sight of a rifle which had fallen from its owner's hand and comforted heap immediately above it there lay the unmistakable body of the "Tiger of Tibet."

Thus was Geoffrey's mission accomplished, and all four solemnly clasped hands. They had shared alike in their perils, and now they had gained safety and freedom.

All four were gathering together their scanty belongings when Sher Khan said, "I think, sahib, that I will go and search the 'Tiger's' body. Perhaps he may be carrying papers, and in France m, captain-sahib always bade us search the enemy dead for papers. Besides, I would make sure that he really is dead."

"Good, Sher Khan. But you will have a long climb. Remember that the snow has now all gone in the avalanche and that gully is no longer easy to cross. At this height it will take you a good half-hour to go and another to return. He is dead enough. I have just looked again through my glasses. But go, and we will wait."

"Oh, Geoffrey, don't let him go. The 'Tiger' would never be carrying any papers when he was chasing us. Besides, what is there to find out? We know all about his temple and treasure, and the Government have got his confederates in Delhi. I can't bear the idea of waiting here for hours with that ghastly body in sight." The anticlimax was almost too much for her and she gave a sob. "Oh, do let's go on down at once."

Geoffrey saw how nearly she had reached the breaking-point and realised that she must be humoured. Besides, there was much truth in what she said about having found out all there was to be learnt. He accordingly checked Sher Khan's eagerness to examine the "Tiger's" body and all four started the descent of the Indian side of the pass.

On the way down they sighted a flock of six burrel rams. Geoffrey knew how beneficial good meat would be after their monotonous and unappetising diet; besides the stalk would create a diversion and help Phyllis to forget for the moment the horrors she had just been through. He and Jogaroo, therefore, immediately set out on the stalk, while Phyllis and the Pathan watched them. It was not long before the latter pair heard Geoffrey's .240 speak and saw the largest ram roll down the shale slope in its death struggle. They all descended to the little camping-ground of Arsamang; a miserable enough place for a camp, being a tiny flat space between terrific slopes and crags on which were two stone enclosures in which shepherds shelter on their way up and down the pass. But they were a happy party, and for the first time for many a day had fresh meat for supper. They set to and collected a huge stack of bortza and kept up a roaring fire almost the whole night through.

While Geoffrey was stalking the burrel the "Tiger of Tibet" slowly recovered consciousness, for he had only been grazed by Geoffrey's last shot. He stared around in impotent rage. The whole body of men which he had collected with such care through the past five years had been wiped out. His agents in India had been captured. And, worst of all, the road to his secret source of wealth was barred. It was true that there must be another means of entering the chamber, but he well knew the remoteness of the chance of finding such an entrance amongst the thousand of caverns of fissures of Kailas. He rose and staggered down the mountain completely broken, yet filled with thoughts of vengeance.

In spite of the cold and bitter wind, Geoffrey's party made an early start. They carried the burrel's head with them—it was a good head of twenty-seven inches—so as to keep it as a memento of their escape.

There is no need to tell of their march past Nithal camping-ground to Chitkul, the first village in the Baspa Valley, where they obtained rice, potatoes, sugar, and flour. Of how they travelled on the next day and eventually reached the pleasant forest bungalow at Kilba, where they met a British officer on his way to shooting-grounds in Kungawar. How this good sportsman fed them with what luxuries he had and lent them money with which to hire ponies—rubies are of little use for such purposes—which they managed to pick up at the very next stage. And of how they journeyed along the Hindustan-Tibet road past Wangtu Bridge, where they took the left-hand and upper route through the wonderful decolour forests of Bagl, to Narkanda, Mattiana, Fagu, and into Simla.

Pretty Fashions For Short Hair

Ribbon During Day,
Tiara At Night.

ORNAMENTAL BANDEAUX
FOR EVENING

A PRETTY fashion for shortish hair which has been allowed to grow a little and which as a rule is waved recalls the days of the Empress Eugenie.

The hair is drawn back at the sides, and the side pieces hold the rather longer back pieces and keep them in order. In some cases a ribbon is used for the day-time, and this is simply tied round the head, rather as Alice in Wonderland's would have been had she not worn a comb. This gives a pleasing youthful appearance, and a ribbon does not come amiss in well-tended hair.

For the evenings, the same idea obtains, but it is grander. A sort of tiara is worn round the head, which sometimes looks like a crescent, sometimes like a ribbon, upon which large round beads are set. This gives a star-like appearance to the ornament.

It may also be stiff, but in every case there is some sort of ornament upon it which stands out well from the head. This is no doubt the beginning of hair-ornaments of many kinds, which at least have the merit of keeping the hair in place until it has really decided what it is going to do.

Decorations For Dress Salons

Novel Methods Of Creating Beauty.

CHANGING STILL LIFE PICTURES

A famous dress salon in Paris presents a different still life picture every day.

At each end of the long white room a square niche has been cut out of the wall above the great fireplace. A pane of glass covers this niche, and inside, illuminated by invisible lighting, is placed an exquisitely arranged bouquet of flowers. Sometimes they are white, sometimes they are a rainbow of lovely colours, and always the effect is perfect.

Even screens must be distinctive, and some of the newest are made of two pieces of glass put together with gorgeously coloured tropical butterflies between them, and with a border of delicate wood all round.

Another equally well-known designer in London has plaster-of-Paris "cornucopias" fixed on his white walls, and keeps them full of fresh flowers.

Importance To-Day Of The Blouse

An Untidy Garment Originally.

ITS DEVELOPMENT FROM VICTORIAN DAYS

NO part of the wardrobe has of late shown so much importance as the blouse or shirt-waist—as some of the distinctively tailored examples are termed.

The late-Victorian blouse was an untidy affair, but was full of interesting ideas at that time, as it signified the first revolt against steels and whalebone, though even then it was not considered correct unless worn over a carefully boned slip. In the early part of the century there was a tennis shirt for the country in flannel, made with a yoke and masculine sleeves, not at all unlike the practical ones of to-day, but with a difference in cut and collars.

The first lapse from the high band was the cricket shape or Byronic open-neck; then hemstitching crept in, and the hand-worked dainty type of lawn-shirt was worn with coats and skirts.

A great improvement arrived with the softly folded stocks in cambric and satin ribbon. The dressier afternoon-blouse, with yokes fitted and inserted with hand-embroidery and lace, and softer crepes and satins, was really a forecast of good things. For out of such loveliness the unlined corsage in dresses evolved, and, in its turn, developed into the chemise-like, straight-up-and-down style in frocks that became, almost a uniform during the war years, and made the mode too easy for some time afterwards.

Quick Treatment For The Skin

Iced Cucumber.

YOUR neck and throat can often do with a quick treatment before an evening's amusement. Here is a stimulating one for you to try.

Cut a cucumber in half, and leave it in a bowl of iced water. Meanwhile, cleanse the skin of the throat carefully with your cleansing cream, and wash off all greasiness with warm, softened water and toilet soap.

Then take your iced cucumber and rub it all over your neck and chest. If you are inclined to double chin, pat the juice briskly in with the back of the fingers. Dip a fair sized pad of cotton wool in the cucumber water, wring out, and strap it under the chin by means of a length of gauze bandage wound round the head.

Paris Fashions And The Quota

British Materials In Great Demand.

INSUFFICIENT OBTAINABLE

WHEN the French Government cut the import quotas drastically and suddenly by 75 per cent it dealt an unforeseen blow at Paris dress designers. They cannot get the fine range of tweeds and woollens from Yorkshire, Scotland, Cumberland, and the West Country for which they had created an increasing demand.

Revivals Of Last Few Years

Fashions Of 1832 To Late 'Nineties.

The last two or three years have seen the revival of all sorts of decorations as well as practical fashions.

Blouses and shirts are, however, of much later date than the "jacket," which went through a variety of phases from the fussy 1832 models, the austere examples of 1860—stiff and much-trimmed, and the more graceful styles of the late 'nineties, which were the fore-runners of those of to-day.

GORGEOUS FABRICS,
CLASSIC CHARM.

Wizardry Of Modern Dressmaking.

WE must not omit to give full credit to the present artistry in dressmaking. The effortless ways and simplicity, how ingenious they are; following classic charm, and detracting from any arrogant ideas of magnificence that might be conveyed by the beauty of the fabric.

It is really wizardry to be able to associate simplicity with folds of metal-woven lame, satins, and more sprayed with gold.

Models are due now for the spring exhibitions, and recent displays on the Riviera have proved the popularity of British tweeds, some in patterns designed specially for the French trade. The supply permitted for the all-important spring quarter is one-quarter of the normal, whereas the increasing business of the last three years had indicated a demand far above the normal.

Leaders of the dress-designing industry are taking joint action in an endeavour to induce the Government to expand the quota generously. Britain, they point out, can buy the model and have abundance of the material. Paris designs the model but cannot supply the French market.

THE QUESTION OF HAT STYLES

London And Paris Not In Accord.

MANY TYPES PROBABLE
IN THE SPRING

IT is obvious that London and Paris are not going to see completely eye to eye in regard to hats this spring. Both are searching for a shape which will be the hat of the season. Actually a variety of shapes will probably emerge, with some type of brimmed sailor as one of the favourites.

The feeling at present is for plain hats with brims of varying size and shape, and women are willing to compromise by wearing trimmings which are more decorative and colourful than they have had since 1914.

PHILIPPINES ATHLETIC STARS IN TRAINING

One Islands' Record Established.

THREE UNIVERSITY MARKS SHATTERED

THE athletes, likely to represent the Philippines in the Far Eastern Olympiad in Manila during May, are now setting new marks for the islands.

One Philippines Amateur Athletic Federation record and four new marks for the series of triangular contests between the University of the Philippines, the University of Santo Tomas, and the National University were established at the recent "Big Three" track and field championships.

Antonio (University of the Philippines) shattered all existing records for the Javelin Throw when he distanced 182 ft. 7 ins.

De Leon (University of Santo Tomas) equalled the existing records for the 100 yards when he breasted the tape in 10.4/5 secs., and shattered the "Big Three" record with a leap of 46 ft. 1 1/2 ins in the Hop, Step, and Jump.

Oswald, also of the University of Santo Tomas, broke the remaining "Big Three" record when he pole-vaulted 11 ft. 4 ins.

The successful competitors at this Meeting, together with this year's inter-Collegiate champions, will be seen in the National Open Championships, which will be in the nature of an elimination contest for representation in the Olympiad.

UGLY SCENES AFTER SOCCER GAME

PLAYER SENT OFF AT KING'S PARK

KOWLOON SECURE POINTS

A UGLY SCENE MARKED THE CONCLUSION OF THE FIRST DIVISION SOCCER MATCH BETWEEN THE ARTILLERY AND THE RECREIO AT KING'S PARK YESTERDAY. A HOSTILE CROWD SURROUNDING THE DRESSING ROOM AFTER THE MATCH IN WHICH COSTILHO, THE HOME TEAM'S WINGER, WAS SENT OFF THE FIELD AND MEMBERS OF BOTH TEAMS WERE CAUTIONED FOR DANGEROUS PLAY.

The Artillery were the superior side, even before the Recreio were obliged to play ten men, and fully deserved their odd goal win. In the other premier league game Kowloon snatched two points from the East Lanes, whose forwards gave a display of exceptionally erratic shooting.

The match between the Service Corps and the 100 per cent. Lincolns team in the Third Division was postponed owing to the arrival of the Neuralla and the subsequent duties of the R.A.S.C. players.

FIRST DIVISION.

ARTILLERY DESERVE WIN OVER RECREIO

Costilho Given Marching Orders.

UGLY SCENE AT FINISH

The Artillery were far superior to the Recreio at King's Park yesterday and fully deserved their narrow win by 2 goals to 1.

Several of the Recreio team were warned for dangerous play, Costilho being eventually sent off the field for attempting to kick an opponent. Two Artillery players were also warned by the referee for heavy tackling.

The first goal was scored by the Gunners and it was quite unexpected. McDonald sent a pass across to Seal, but a strong wind diverted its flight and it bounced over Marques into the net. The Recreio broke away and Delgado, inside left, sent in a very fast low shot which Crombie, making a wonderful save, caught near the post.

Delgado equalised for the Recreio after ten minutes play, in the second half. Costilho passed across to the centre, Crombie dashed out but was beaten for possession by Delgado, who had no difficulty in netting the ball.

The Artillery took play back to the Recreio's area, good play resulting in a second goal for the Gunners when McDonald passed to Seal who took the ball down the wing to return a neat pass to McDonald who scored a great goal. Shortly after this goal McDonald was unlucky when he hit the upright with a very hard drive.

Costilho received marching orders at this stage for attempting to kick Wroe. The referee did not hesitate in sending Costilho off the field.

During the last few moments of play, and after the final whistle had blown, the spectators became very hostile outside the dressing room.

Artillery: Comby, Lowan, Wroe, Worthington, Rogers, Harris, Rivers, Knight, Birmingham, McDonald and Seal.

Recreio: Marques, Bowen, Silvo, Nektis, Maher, Fluegerdo, Consalves, Pereira, Gomes, Sousa, Delgado and Costilho.

KOWLOON TRIUMPH OVER EAST LANCS.

Blake Responsible For Two Goals.

SOLDIERS' POOR SHOOTING

Kowloon registered their fourth victory when they defeated the East Lanes at Kowloon by two clear goals.

The game was absolutely devoid of interest, the football being far below First Division standard, and yet the talent was there.

The East Lanes are sadly lacking in shooting practice. In the second half they dominated the game and had numerous chances, but each of their forwards shot yards wide or over the bar.

Kowloon were without Elliot, Biles, Timbriak and Lewis and the substitutes played well, with the exception of the wing halves, Owen Davies and Tilly, whose ball distribution was very poor.

Starting off in fine style Kowloon forced a corner and White was just wide with a good effort. Within five minutes, however, they had taken the lead, Blake running clear and sending across a splendid ground pass for Reid to net easily. A few minutes later Harmsworth was exceedingly fortunate to clear from McQuade.

After the interval the East Lanes livened up considerably and Tuley hit the crossbar, and Cord had to make a great save at point blank range from Horner. Smith then grazed the crossbar after a fine individual effort. Although continuing to have most of the play, the soldiers could not score, wild shooting and good work by Willis and Jones frustrating them. After 25 minutes Kowloon went further ahead, Blake being at least 6 yards offside and being allowed to run through and score, the Lanes players appealing in vain.

Kowloon: Cord, Willis, Jones, Owen-Davies, Yeomans, Tillery, Everest, V. White, Reid, McQuade and Blake.

East Lanes: Harmsworth, Swain, Gorman, Rothwell, Thompson, Norton, Salmon, Horner, Smith, Woods and Tuley.

CHAMPIONS BEAT SAINTS BY ODD GOAL

Last Minute Goal By Miss Churchill.

FIRST ROUND RESULT REPEATED

A goal by Miss J. Churchill in the last minutes of the match gave the Hong Kong Ladies Victory over the St. Andrew's Ladies by 2 goals to 1 after a hotly contested match in the Caer Clark Cup competition at Sookunpoo yesterday.

Winning their first round encounter with the Saints by the same margin the Hong Kong Ladies, winners of the Cup for the last three years, are now almost assured of the trophy once again.

Yesterday's game was marred by extremely poor refereeing by two substitutes, the official referees for the game being unable to attend.

The champions field a full team, but the Saints were severely handicapped by the absence of Miss J. Wong, the Colony's centre-half, who was indisposed. Miss I. Wolley, however, played well in her place, while Miss P. Everest was seen at right half.

The game was evenly contested in the first half, but the Hong Kong Ladies asserted their superiority in the second period. Their forwards, however, missed many chances to score.

Miss J. Churchill opened the scoring early in the first half, but replying strongly the Saints equalised through Miss I. Gittins, who snapped up a pass from Miss M. Wolley.

School Girls Unlucky To Lose.

MISS GLENDENING'S DECIDER

THE Central British Schoolgirls were very unfortunate to lose to the "Y" Ladies in their Caer Clark Cup hockey encounter yesterday, when, after holding their own in brilliant manner for three quarters of the game, they finally went under through a lucky goal by Miss M. Glendenning midway through the second half, and despite many brilliant attacks they were unable to reduce the deficit.

The goalkeeper was unsighted for Miss Glendenning's shot.

Miss K. Moir, the Schoolgirls' centre half played a brilliant game, and together with her wing halves Miss L. Hickey and Miss J. Lakeman, broke up practically every one of the "Y" Ladies' attacks. The feeding by these halves of their forwards was superb and was the outstanding feature of the game.

"Y" Ladies:—Mrs. M. Reid; Mrs. Portallan, A. Fowler; B. Blumenthal, E. Thomson, M. Gardiner; V. Bradbury, M. Glendenning, R. Blackmore, T. Dennis and O. Brown.

WELL-DESERVED WIN

The Recreio "A" eleven recorded a well-merited win by four clear goals over their "B" team in their Caer Clark Cup encounter at King's Park yesterday afternoon.

The "A" eleven took the lead through Miss M. Remedios and increased it through a goal by Miss M. Roza.

In the second half the "A" team completely dominated play, and further goals were scored by Miss M. Roza and Miss A. Alves.

Recreio "A":—B. Almada; C. Osmond, M. Basto; E. Xavier, L. Silveretto and M. Alves; M. Remedios, A. Alves, C. Silva, M. Roza and B. Remedios.

INDIAN HOCKEY TRIAL

Fast Encounter Provides No Goals.

DEFENCES ASSERT SUPERIORITY

The second Indian hockey trial, in preparation for the forthcoming International Hockey Tournament, was played on the Marina ground, Kowloon, yesterday and resulted in another goalless draw.

The first trial, held on Friday, also resulted in a goalless draw. There were several changes on both sides, but fast and spectacular hockey was witnessed.

Both defences proved very sound, but the forwards lacked combination, and were erratic in front of the goal. Kushi Mohammed (Police), Bachan Singh (H.K.S.) and Gurbachan Singh (Radio) were the pick of the "Whites" team, for which Bhag All played well in goal, while Kishan Singh (H.K.S.) Kater Singh, and Kadushan Singh (H.K.S.) were outstanding for Colours.

The following were the teams.
Whites—Bhag All (Mule Corps); Khan Bahadur (Punjabis); Kushi Mohammed (Police); P. Singh (Radio); Bachan Singh (H.K.S.); Sapooran Singh (H.K.S.); Attar Singh (Radio); Kishan Singh (H.K.S.); Gurbachan Singh (Radio); Kater Singh (Punjabis), and Attar Singh (Radio).

Manipulation of the Dollar.

ALTHOUGH the devaluation of the United States dollar at 59.06 cents has provided an atmosphere of temporary stability, the mystery surrounding the monetary policy of the Roosevelt administration remains. Uncertainty persists, and the rumours that further inflation is contemplated (possibly through some form of re-monetisation) increase the doubts and fears that are retarding business recovery. The newly-created $2,000,000,000 stabilisation fund has not yet been operated, but the threat of an international currency war is real and serious. Little indication has been given of Mr. Roosevelt's next move, but Professor Warren has clearly stated his views. The professor's present status is not quite apparent but he was the President's monetary adviser during the period when the greater part of the monetary programme was put into effect. He is the author of the "commodity dollar," and the actual conductor of the recent "dollar-manipulation" policy. In declaring his views, Professor Warren showed no sympathy with the notion that gold is somehow a public enemy—a conception passionately avowed by American inflationists of 1868 and 1896, asserted occasionally in controversies since last March, and vehemently preached (but only for a month or two) in England after gold payments had been relinquished. Professor Warren frankly favours eventual return to the gold standard. His statement seemed actually to drift toward the everyday practical view of things when he ascribed the troubles of 1920 to reckless credit overexpansion. "Credit as well as paper money," he remarked, "may be fiat." But when he asks, "Why were prices so high" in the war and immediate post-war period, he tells his fellow-economists that "the reason for this was low demand for gold, followed by a return of demand." The sudden and prodigious war-material purchases, the drafting of labourers and producers into military service, the resultant paralysis of peacetime production, apparently had nothing to do with it. Professor Warren had relatively little to say of his currency-manipulation, except to assert that "if a country raises the buying price of gold" when gold prices of commodities are stable, "prices will rise in proportion to the advance in the price of gold." His attempt to fit this theorem with the action of prices, during the episode of Washington gold-fixing since October 24, is on its face entirely futile. In point of fact the resolutions adopted and published in America during the past two months, by economic teachers at practically all important colleges and universities, show what impression the Administration's currency experiments have made on trained observers. Not one of these declarations has given even conditional approval of the dollar-manipulation policy. In line with the numerous similar resolutions by chambers of commerce and responsible trade organizations, all of the college faculty declarations have protested vigorously against it. All have opposed emphatically the vague notion of a so-called "commodity dollar." All have demanded speedy return by the United States to the gold standard. There remained one stinging criticism to be made, from what must have been an unexpected quarter. John Maynard Keynes has been perhaps the most-talked-of European apostle of tinkering with the standard of value. Conservatives entertain small sympathy with his particular money theories; but he had been rather generally regarded as the economic authority on which the Administration leaned. Mr. Keynes has frankly expressed his own view of Washington's dollar-manipulation, and a few of his apposite remarks are of interest. First as to the original programme of arbitrary marking-up of the official gold price and marking-down of the official dollar valuation: "This game of blind man's buff with exchange speculators serves no useful purpose and is extremely undignified. It upsets confidence, hinders business decisions, occupies the public attention in a measure far exceeding its real importance, and is responsible both for the irritation and a certain lack of respect which exist abroad." Next, as to Washington's avowed objective of raising prices scientifically through tinkering with the dollar. "It is an even more foolish application of the same ideas to believe that there is a mathematical relation between the price of gold and the prices of other things." Finally, as to the tangible results of that programme: "The recent gyrations of the dollar have looked to me more like a gold standard on the booze than the ideal managed currency of my dreams."

100 YEARS' GAOL FOR YOUTH

Death Sentence Quashed In Chicago.

SEQUEL TO KILLING AND ROBBERY

Chicago.
James (Iggy) Varcha, youthful killer, has managed to evade the "hot squat" (electric chair) thanks to a new trial, but he has been sentenced to serve 100 years in the State Prison.

Varcha, now 18 years of age, was given the long term for the killing of Frank Jordan last year. He was also sentenced to terms of one year to life on a robbery charge and from one to 14 years for assault with intent to kill, resulting from the robbery of James C. McElligott.

Previously Varcha was sentenced to die in the chair but the State Supreme Court ordered a new trial because he had been adjudged feeble-minded. A jury later determined that he was sane.—Reuter.

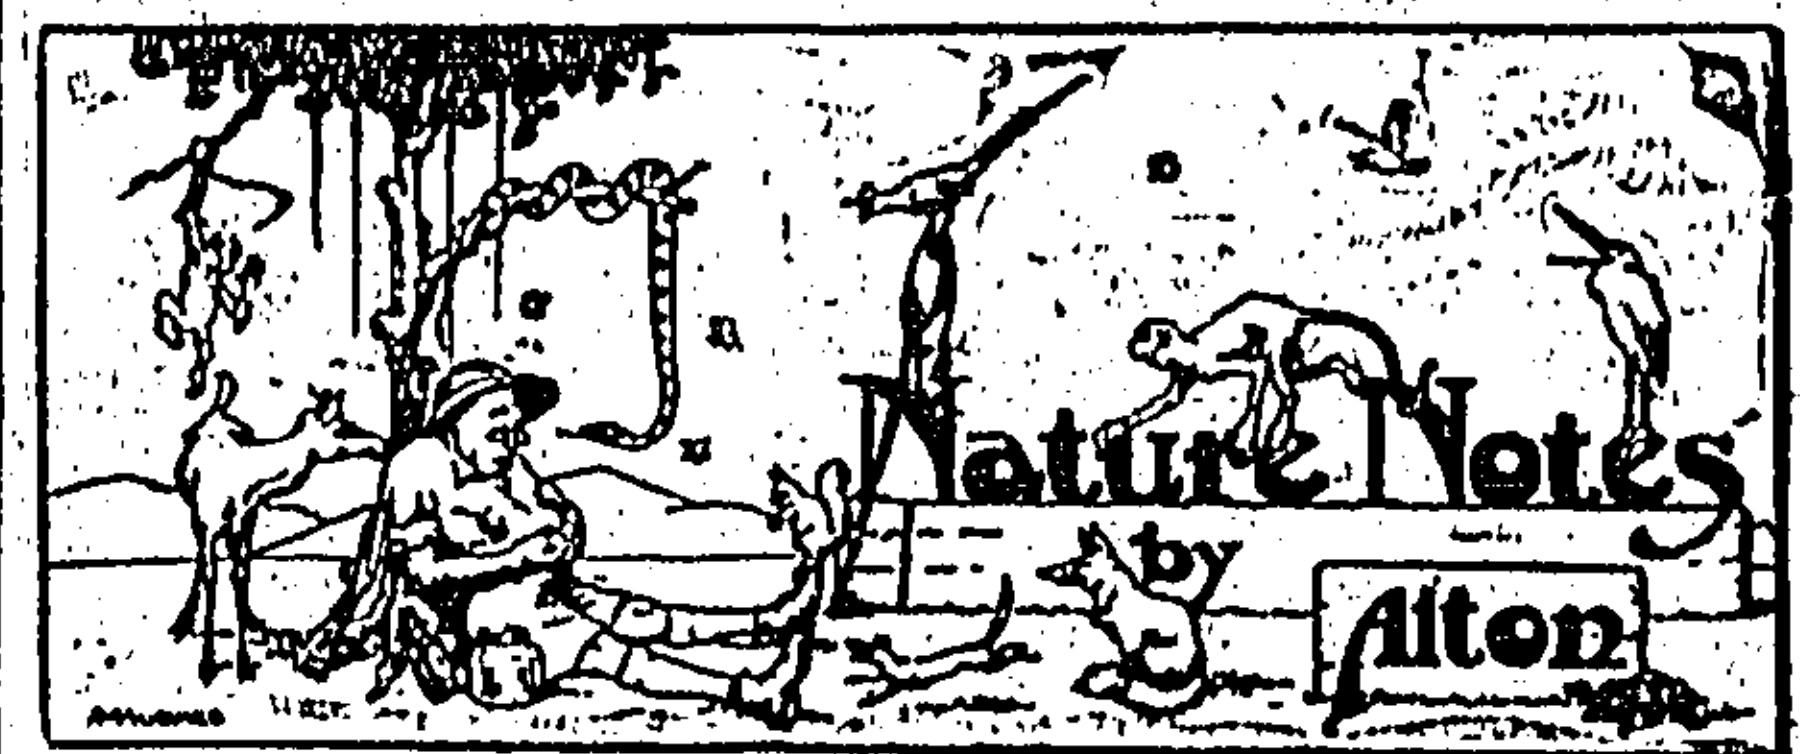

COMPOSERS' AIRS AND HEIRS.

Austria Decrees New Copyright Rule.

Vienna.
Austria has taken steps to protect the heirs of her musicians.

She is musical land, and much of the work of her composers is played abroad. So that there shall be no loss to their heirs in royalties, the Government has extended the period of copyright, applying to music, literature and other arts, from 30 to 50 years after the date of death.

The longer royalties are much needed, for many of the heirs to Austrian composers are not at all well-to-do.—Reuter.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 91.

Litsca litrata.

It is impossible to write of a new record each week without either spending a great deal of time in exploring the Territories or calling to too great an extent on our imagination. The tree which bears the name of Litsca litrata is one of the Colony's most beautiful spring-flowering trees. The last week in January and the first fortnight in February about cover its flowering period. This tree is abundant near Kowloon reservoir, in the woods on each side of the road down to Shatin, near Tai Po, near the Pokfulam conduit and on the banks above and below Stubbs road. It is very like a Willow with its long narrow leaves and green twigs but most of the leaves drop before the flowers open and the young leaf-buds have not yet unfolded. The flowers are small but crowded in masses along the terminal two to five inches of last year's twigs giving somewhat the appearance of a bottle brush. The trees are unisexual, those bearing the male flowers are the more attractive because the golden yellow stamens in contrast with the white petals and bracts like the flowers appear lemon coloured. The female are less attractive because the edges of the broad stigmas, blacken and thus give the flowers a dirty appearance. Both male and female flowers have a fragrant smell like that of a lemon hence the specific name litrata. The genus is in the same family as the Camphor tree.

Machilus thunbergii.

Another member of the Camphor family is looking very attractive just now especially on Victoria Peak. It is a large tree with deep green evergreen leaves but at this season the buds are opening and the young shoot and leaves are developing. The young leaves are often deep red in colour and form a vivid crown at the end of each branch in strong contrast to the dark green of the old leaves.

The Sha-tin district.

The afternoon of February 3 was devoted to an exploration of the villages of Tai Wai and Tin Sam and of the wooded valleys below the Amah rock in the neighbourhood of Kak Tin. This is a most attractive district and has the additional merit of being very easily reached either from Tai Wai village or from Sha Tin station.

The number of species of birds seen was not large being only 20 but it included a few interesting ones. On the right bank of the Shing Mun River between the road and the railway were noticed at the same time a Little Kingfisher, and a white-breasted Kingfisher, another specimen of this larger species was observed near Kak Tin. At Tai Wai a Blackbird flew down from a camphor tree onto the road a car disturbed it and it returned to the tree only to descend to the road when the car had passed; three times did it carry out this programme, an unusual performance for such a shy bird as the Chinese Blackbird. Two more Blackbirds were seen at Kak Tin, one of these being observed for quite a long time. The only other migratory thrush seen was an Eastern Blue Rock-Thrush, also near Tai Wai village, a bird easily recognised by its almost universal pale blue plumage.

A Filmy Fern.

In the valley below the Amah rock grows what is probably the smallest fern in the Colony with fronds less than an inch in length; it is called Trichomanes parvulum. The only other locality where we have found it is under the shade of large rocks near the summit of Tai-mo-shan. Filmy ferns like cool damp situations and are therefore not abundant in this Colony where the winter is so dry. We found this species growing on the same rock where we had first discovered it three or four years ago, it was dried up but probably alive. Two other localities where we have found filmy ferns are near Derwentwater in the English Lake District and near the summit of Mount Maquil in the Philippines, both places being almost always cool and excessively wet.

President Roosevelt receives, on the average, 8,000 letters a day—a record for a Chief Executive of the United States.

Louis P. Alber, Chief of the N. R. A. Speakers' Division revealed this fact and added that prior to the N.R.A. inauguration the record for Presidential mail was 800 letters in one day, held by the late President Wilson, during the Great War.

President Hoover's average daily mail was 600 letters.—Reuter.

PRODUCTION"Ten Minute Alibi."
In Rehearsal.

NAMES OF THE PLAYERS

(Contributed.)

The stage history of "Ten Minute Alibi" is both interesting and instructive. Following a by no means singular experience the play went the round of several theatres, and finally passed into the hands of Mr. Ronald Adams of the Embassy Theatre, who stepped in where others feared to tread, with the result that at the first performance at the Embassy the author's work scored an unmistakable success. An arrangement was speedily made with Mr. Horace Watson to produce it at the Haymarket Theatre, where it is justifying all the high expectations of both author and producer.

In the first act a man dreams of planning and committing a murder, visualising every detail, and we see him carrying out his plan. In the next act we see the actual murder, but, strange to say, the repetition carries with it no sense of sameness or loss of interest, as might have been expected; in fact a certain piquant curiosity is aroused as to the realisation of the dream, and if it will really pan out according to plan. There is this difference, however: the actuality takes on a strenuousness which is absent in the dream, and this effect is produced entirely by the emotional intensity of the acting when the murder is being committed, as then we feel it is indeed real flesh and blood manifesting itself in deliberate and thrilling action.

The three protagonists in the drama are Philip Sevilla, Colin Derwent and Betty Findon. The action takes place in Sevilla's flat in Bloomsbury.

The Plot

Betty is a charming young lady very much in love with Sevilla and she believes that her love is fully returned; and with her love there is mingled an element of great pity, for Sevilla has told her that his married life is a tragedy. As he explains to Betty, "I want to get free from her, but the divorce courts do not recognise insanity as a reason."

Need it be said, at the moment, that Sevilla's wife is a myth, that he is an accomplished and experienced defrauder? This reputation is well known to Colin Derwent, who is himself deeply in love with Betty; but Colin is a penniless barrister, and that is the barrier to his love-making. Betty has come to Sevilla to tell him that she will accede to his ardent wooings, and go with him to Paris as his mistress, trusting in his honour and his promises of a happy future.

Colin has become seriously alarmed at Betty's intimacy with Sevilla, and follows her to the latter's flat, where he has a stormy interview with the man, and pleads pathetically with the girl not to wreck her future, even telling her of the stories current concerning Sevilla, with a history of one particular girl victim who committed suicide after she had been deserted in the Argentine. In Sevilla's amours, Paris is but a transitional stage; the Argentine is the convenient country for provoking the trouble that gives him the excuse for abandoning the girl who has given him her all.

Colin tries threats to the man, and to these Sevilla answers, "How exactly can you prevent us doing what we want?—short of killing me, of course." And Colin answers very seriously, "You know, Sevilla, I'm beginning to think I'd do even that."

There you have the basis of the plot, with a suggestion of the action and the preparation for the murder, which is not quite carried out according to the dream, because the human equation has to be considered and taken into account. The means Colin is using to prove his alibi is the clock, the hands of which he moves skillfully backwards and forwards so as to satisfy his innocent collaborators of his absence just at those moments which might identify him with the murder. This means quick entrances, hurried exits, and much coolness of thought and action, with rapid decisions and explanations. All are convinced of the goodness of the alibi—except one; and that one is Betty. She has understood, and Colin knows that she knows.

BANK OF EAST ASIA,
LIMITED.Annual Meeting Held
Yesterday.$6 DIVIDEND DECLARED
AND $1 BONUSSlight Decline In Net
Revenue

The annual general meeting of the Bank of East Asia, Limited, was held yesterday afternoon, at its registered office, 12, Des Vaux Road Central.

The Hon. Sir Shouson Chow presided, and there were present Messrs. Wong Chu-sun, P. K. Kwok, Wong Yun-tong, Li Koon-chun, Li Lan-sang, (Directors), Kan Tong-po, (Chief Manager), Li Tse-fong (Manager), and the following shareholders, Messrs. Kwok Shiu-lau, Chow Tung-sang, K. K. Lee, Lo Hau-fuk, Wong Yin-nin, Li Pao-tin, Li Tung, Chan Tze-choy, Fok Chow-ye, Tso Shuk-hon, Li Pak-to, Chow Chi-nam and many others.

The chairman, in the course of his speech, said:—

The net profit for the year's working shows a slight decline from that of last year, but after taking into consideration the general trade depression throughout the world I think the result obtained is not as unsatisfactory as it would seem. An indication of this depression may be found in the balance sheet before you, more particularly under the heading of "Bills Receivable" which shows a falling off of over a million dollars as compared with last year.

Under existing conditions in the Colony your Directors have experienced difficulty in finding safe and profitable employment of our surplus fund with the result that at the end of the year the ratio of our cash reserve represents over 70 per cent of our liabilities under current and fixed deposits.

The usual amount was written off from the Bank Premises Account. The addition of a sum of little over $84,000 to this account consists mostly of final payments on the completion of a new building for our Canton Branch and part payments in respect of work on the foundation of our new Bank Building in Hong Kong. I take this opportunity to inform you that the work on the foundation and basement floor will be completed very soon and work on the super-structure will be started some time this month or early next month. It is expected that the whole building will be completed during the early part of next year.

The increase in the Investment Account is due to the incorporation of the Staff Provident Fund in our Balance Sheet. All investments including those held on trust for the Staff Provident Fund have been written down to the ruling market prices at the end of the year.

With the present low rate of interest ruling in the Colony I think shareholders will be satisfied with the Directors' recommendation of the payment of a dividend of $6.00 and a bonus of $1.00 per share for the year making a return of seven per cent on their capital.

In recognition of their loyal and meritorious service, the Directors recommend you to vote for the payment of a bonus of $24,000.00 to the Staff which is the same as last year.

Before I formally move the adoption of the report and accounts, I wish to state that during the year arrangement was made with the Lee Wah Bank Ltd. in Singapore for the promotion of our exchange business in that Centre and I am glad to say the result so far obtained is quite satisfactory.

From the disposable balance of $849,935.44 the Directors recommend the payment of a dividend of $6 per share, absorbing $335,916, and a bonus of $1 per share, absorbing of $55,986; the payment of a bonus to the staff of $24,000; the transfer to reserve of $100,000 and the carrying forward of $334,031.44 to next account.

Dividend warrants are payable to-morrow, Monday, February 12.

On the proposal of Mr. Tso Shuk-hon, seconded by Mr. Lo Hau-fuk, Mr. Li Lan-sang was elected as an ordinary director for the current year, while Messrs. Percy Smith, Soth and Fleming were re-elected as auditors, on the proposal of Mr. Chow Tung-sang, seconded by Mr. P. K. Kwok.

CENTENARIAN
NATIVE'S LIFE
OF ROMANCEZulu Chief Who Dined
With Queen Victoria.

TRIED TO PREVENT 1879 WAR

Ladysmith (Natal). Formerly confidential adviser to the great Zulu chief, Cetewayo, and a man with an intimate knowledge of the bloody rule of the early days of the Colony, when the country was wild and untamed, Xaba, now about a 100 years of age, paid a visit to Ladysmith.

Xaba is an extraordinary character. He was born in the Transvaal, his father being one of the earliest Christian converts. At an early age Xaba came to Natal and, being a Christian, soon came into the limelight as an intermediary between the Europeans and native royal courts. In this capacity it did not take Xaba long to become an intimate of the great Cetewayo, and when the Zulu King travelled to London, Xaba went with him.

The old man had many amusing anecdotes to relate about that voyage and the stay in Melbourne House.

He clearly recalls with pride the interview he had with Queen Victoria.

"Not only did I see her, but I dined with her. You do not seem to appreciate the fact that I was travelling with royalty," he told Reuters' correspondent.

Xaba, who said he had always been a staunch ally of England, described how he tried to dissuade the Zulu king from entering into the disastrous war with the white men in 1879. He told him that he would be hopelessly defeated.

After paying his respects to the Court officials, Xaba mounted his horse and with a small troop of outriders returned to his home. It is hoped in the near future to take a complete statement from the old man for record purposes.—Reuters.

SERIOUS ASSAULT
WITH Mallet.Cook-Boys Attacked
By Labourer.

Prosecuting a Chinese builder's labourer, Bin Kin, at the Central Police Court yesterday morning for assaulting four young cook-boys at Wanchai Road, Inspector McLellan told the Court that the man set about the boys with a wooden mallet because they were late in preparing the morning meal.

"Their injuries fortunately were only of a minor nature, but all the same any one of them might have been killed," said the Inspector.

Mr. Hamilton imposed a fine of $10, in default two weeks' hard labour.

PRETTY WEDDING
AT CATHEDRAL

McLellan — Henderson.

RUGBY INTERPORT CAPTAIN
MARRIED

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon, when Mr. David McLellan, the Colony's Rugby Interport Captain and a Master at King's College, led to the altar Miss Winifred Henderson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Henderson of the Kowloon Docks.

The ceremony was performed by the Very Rev. Dean Swann.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was charmingly attired in a beautiful sheath-fitting Duverne model which set off her delightful colouring to perfection. The gown was of ivory satin, hand-embroidered with seed pearls; it had a high neckline, and a train falling from below the hips. She also wore an exquisite hand-embroidered veil and carried a sheaf of arum lilies.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Henderson, wearing a pretty gown of white taffeta, and seven flower girls, the Misses Daphne Deakin, Diane Deakin, Pauline Buchanan, Olwyn Greig, Muriel Fielder, Dorothy Deakin and Sheila Cooper, who were also daintily attired in white taffeta and carried muffs, while Gilbert Stewart, the page, wore white satin.

Mr. D. J. Crozier, also a Master at King's College officiated as best man.

The bride's mother wore a gown of chestnut georgette, trimmed with foxglove to tone, and carried a bouquet of African daisies.

The bridesmaid's and flower girls' dresses were designed and made by Mrs. G. H. Stewart, while the gowns worn by the bride and her mother, supplied by Lane, Crawford, Ltd., were executed by "Josephine C."

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Gloucester Building. The couple later left for their honeymoon, the bride's going-away ensemble being also a Duverne model in nymph green, with hat and stiffened veil to match, and finished with the latest walnut bag and flower.

A charming wedding took place at the Peak Church yesterday afternoon, when Miss M. L. Mackellar, who recently arrived in the Colony on the s.s. Changte, became the wife of Dr. R. S. Traill of the Peak.

The bride, who was given away by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. F. W. Traill, was attended by Miss Wood as bridesmaid. Mr. D. S. Harley assumed the duties of best man.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at No. 16, Peak Mansions, after which the happy couple left for their honeymoon.

The Closing Years Of Christ's LifeRelentless Opponent Of OppressorsEVENTS THAT PROVED HIS CHARACTER

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

SO the "Hidden Years" passed on.

It sounds like a caption in the old days of the silent films, but as a matter of fact, we are referring to those years of the life of Jesus Christ, about which no record has been left us in the pages of the Gospels. In the article last week we thought of the one break that is given us—when He went up to Jerusalem at the age of twelve.

Then came the years of solid work at the carpenter's bench. Joseph had died, and the care and responsibility of His Mother and the family fell upon His shoulders. When He reached the age of thirty, the others were sufficiently grown up, to look after themselves, and there came the day when for the last time He swept up the shavings from the workshop floor, and put away His tools. The preparation was over, ahead lay His destiny.

What kind of a man was He, that day when He began to imprint Himself upon the history of the world? It is worthy of our thought in this next few articles. Well, He was young and strong of body, for He had worked hard at His job. He had known many of the days which leave a worker aching in every limb, and He had the complete mastery over all His muscles which can only be won in such a way.

We never hear of His being ill, and He must have had that fine masculine beauty which comes only with perfect health. He walked with the grace that belongs to the strong—and the free, and held the vital forces of a complete manhood in reserve for any emergency. He had no kinship with the pale and sickly types of sainthood, but belonged to the happy sons of the open air. He was of those whom labour has made dignified. For His wonderful mental and moral life He had the basis of a perfect physique.

So the author of a book written some years ago, called "As Tommy Sees Us," described Him. And it is a far better description than we have of Him in pictures hallowed by tradition.

Sorrowed In Silence

Like all strong men, He was reserved. He almost never spoke about His feelings or let others see into His inner life. He was not one of those who talk much about themselves, and He did not make His own experiences the subject matter of His teaching. Even to His nearest friends He remained something of a mystery and there were times when they felt they must not intrude upon the sanctity of His solitude. He had great conflicts to go through, but He endured them alone, and kept His sorrows and trials to himself. His religion was an overmastering thing, but it did not produce emotional outbursts, or express itself in effusions of sentiment. He was always a quiet man.

There was a strange majesty about Him. He held no offices and possessed no official authority, but He had a moral authority that was almost irresistible.

Even men who were vile felt it and were afraid of His enormous power.

He did not command. Men gave way before Him. Individuals almost never dared to oppose Him, and it was not till a great many had plotted together that they dared to try and break Him. When He spoke, all men turned to listen. When He was present nobody else seemed to count.

He had that mysterious thing called the power of personality, which carves its own way in the world, and does not need the weapons of authority. His ordinary words carried with them their own demonstration, just because they were the manifest outcome of a perfect sincerity. And when He did allow Himself to speak with passion, His listeners must have been afraid. His whirling words carried with them a power so terrible that to this day they almost produce terror.

Perfect Self-Mastery

They said of Him that He was meek. And indeed He was meek. He was indeed almost unswerving. He took no steps against His enemies, and suffered the worst that they could do to Him without a murmur. Before cruel and unjust judges He stood silent. Those who would hector and bully Him found that He would not meet them with their own weapons.

The servants of the slaughterhouse found Him dumb. His meekness was the outcome of perfect self-mastery, and a perfect self-surrender. But when the interests of the weak were concerned He could be stern and strong. Those who oppressed widows' houses found in Him a relentless opponent. Those who abused little children discovered that His anger could be terrific. When on one occasion He found men dealing the Temple, He swept them before Him in the might of a holy wrath that sent them away shaken and afraid.

He was wholly without fear, although He lived His whole life in the face of opposition it never deflected Him; one half's breadth from the course He meant to take. He faced crafty priests and vindictive rulers with a composure that was never shaken. He even stood unmoved before the howling mob. It was one of the things that lashed His enemies to fury that they could never make Him afraid.

The Road To The Cross

There came the day when He knew that to go up to Jerusalem meant certain death. He could so easily have remained in the country. He could have lived on possibly for years if He had chosen to be prudent and clever. He could have found a thousand reasons to excuse such a course. But honour pointed to Jerusalem and so He had to go.

It was not like going over the top, when a man has at least a chance of coming through. It was not even taking the chance of a clean bullet wound that ends everything in a moment. It was facing death with sickening torture as a preliminary, the kind of death to which only the lowest criminals were condemned. Yet He "steadfastly set His face to go up to Jerusalem."

At the head of our highest honour and truest manhood, at the head of all the world's great heroes since the world began, the Man Christ Jesus rides an easy first.

National Government In Review

Significant Figures Of
By-ElectionsPremier's Aim To Secure
One-Party System

(By VISCOUNT SNOWDEN)

London. The "National" Government is now in its third year of office. The country has had sufficient time to form an opinion on the decision it took in 1931.

Whatever the country may think, the members of the Government have no doubt about the wisdom of that step, nor about the success of their administration.

We have their authority that this Government has "done great good to the nation," that "it is the one steady influence in a distracted world," and that "every Englishman is proud of the three men who came together in the hour of the nation's danger."

But the Ministers are troubled because the nation does not fully appreciate the blessings which have been showered upon it by this Government. The electors seem to be sliding back into the old party divisions, ignorant of the fact that "there are no part has made its contribution to a National combination which embraces everything from every party."

But this ignorance on the part of the electorate is to be removed. Broadcast talks and "movie performances" are to be supplemented by a platform campaign.

The Cabinet had intended to do this before, but whenever the Prime Minister and his colleagues "had planned to go about the country telling the truth of what they were doing they found some little trouble here or there."

The Prime Minister did find time to escape for a day from his worries to tell the electors of Kilmarnock to his great achievements, and to warn them it was a "crime" to vote against him and his Government. But this adventure did not quite succeed, for, at a by-election just after, the National vote fell by 9,000, and a 2-to-1 vote was registered against the National Government.

That, however, did not discourage the Prime Minister. He regarded the result as "one of the greatest blows the Opposition has received and one of the greatest encouragements to the National Government."

The staggering defeat of the Government candidate at Fulham gave the Prime Minister great satisfaction. He described it as "an amusing incident."

Sir John Simon is not behind the Prime Minister in deriving satisfaction from defeat. These Ministers are so obsessed by a belief in their own indispensability that they regard every rebuff as a compliment.

Opposition Votes Rise. Let us look at the facts. These cannot be obscured by the blatant self-praise of Ministers. The Prime Minister tells us that the great trouble is that our people have no memories. "Let us give them memories," he says.

It is just because the electors have memories that they are turning away from the pretensions of the National Government.

The figures of the last six by-elections are significant. At the last general election in these six constituencies the National candidates polled a total of 147,000 votes and the Opposition 67,000 votes. At the recent by-elections the votes given to the Government candidate fell to 91,500 and the Opposition vote rose to 110,500.

This result cannot be attributed to abstentions, for the total poll was not far short of that recorded at the general election.

The recent by-elections have shown conclusively that the country has reverted to the three-party system.

There is no combination of parties now in the National Government. It is a Party Government—and a One-Party Government.

The Prime Minister has no electoral support whatever to give to the Government. He has not even a shadow party. The two million votes which were taken from the Labour Party at the general election have all gone back.

Mr. MacDonald has found his spiritual home with the Tory Party. He has told us that when he found confidence in friendship with his new colleagues and a great, overpowering, common purpose with them.

Sir John Simon announces that he is no longer a Liberal. Before the last general election he owed his seat to Tory votes.

Premier A Tory Liability. The Conservatives have nothing to gain by keeping up the pretence of a National Government. The votes now given to the Government candidates are just the Conservative Party strength. Mr. MacDonald and not an asset to the Tory Party.

The Tories could shed both of them to-morrow, and all the other "Liberal" and "Labour" Ministers, and the party would be the stronger for the clearance.

What are the reasons why the country is turning against the Government? There are two main reasons. The first is that the Government has used a great majority, obtained for a specific purpose, to carry out fundamental changes in national policy.

It was for a specific and temporary purpose, and for that alone, that the National Government was formed. Nobody was more insistent upon that than the Prime Minister. He declared that "there would be no loss of political identity within the National Government, because its tasks were temporary, and when finished normal political activities would be resumed."

Now it is unblushingly declared that the combination is to be permanent, and the "power of the National Government is to be retained for the next period of office."

Two Scotsmen had ventured in-in experience they made up for in zeal. On their first night in the jungle the dismal howling of a wolf disturbed their rest. Presently Macpherson rose to his feet, seized his rifle, and said: "Ah! I bet ye an ounce o' tobacco I kill that darned wolf!"

He went out into the darkness.
Three hours later he returned, dragging a dead wolf. MacTavish grudgingly parted with an ounce

Just before dawn another howl

Old Brown had had a terrible morning. He was unable to walk, and had engaged a man to pull him about in an invalid's chair.
Twice they had nearly been crushed under a tramcar, and once the invalid-chair man had almost dropped his charge into a river.

They halted at the top of a very steep hill. At first Brown welcomed the halt, but at last he began to get restless.

"Why are you stopping here?"
he asked, nervously.

"It's all right," the attendant replied. "I'm only waiting for my mate, with another old gent. We're going to 'avo a race down the

SOLEMN THOUGHT

If the modern girl isn't as fresh as paint it's the paint's fault.

Big Enough.

In a Presbyterian church in a small Canadian town the new minister was greeted by an unctuous elder of his congregation after the first Sunday morning service. The elder, in addition to being unctuous, was huge and unwieldy in form.

"Minister, that was a fair sermon you gave us this morning—a little too much science, but fair.
Remember, minister, you must feed
the sheep, feed the sheep."

The little minister, looking his colossal adviser and elder over carefully from head to foot, replied:
"Heavens, man, it's exercise you need, not food."

"You have some professional humorists working on you linotype machines?" he asked a sub-editor.
The sub's reply was a haughty stare.

"Do you read your own paper?"
went on the small, inquiring voice.
"Occasionally."

"Did you read my poem entitled
'To Cynthia,' in your last issue?"
"Er—I'm afraid—"

"I thought not. In that poem I wrote a line that read: 'I love you better than I love my life.'"

"Yes? A very neat line."

"And one of your linotype operators put it: 'I love you better than I love my wife.' And—and —well, look at my face!"

OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
London, Jan. 25.

Praise and Blame . . .

The six ministerial "hot-gospel-lers" who are to stump Great Britain will have two themes:
What the National Government have done, and will do.

The dangers of the Socialist programme.

Some of the speakers will be faced with difficulties on the second theme if they hark back to pre-1931 days.

The Prime Minister's "News Letter" laid it down after the Clay Cross by-election that if a Conservation that if a Conservative or Liberal minister launched an attack on the record of the Labour Government it would be a breach of the understanding on which the National Government rests.

Mr. MacDonald and Mr. J. H.
Thomas will, of course, have that in mind. What of Mr. Baldwin,
Mr. Chamberlain, Sir John Simon
or Mr. Runciman?

The task of the National Government was finished when the Budget was balanced and national credit was re-established.

I still believe that the crisis of 1931 could not have been overcome without a temporary party unity on the necessary steps.

But a co-operation which may be useful for a particular purpose is not necessarily applicable to general legislation. The very essence of Parliamentary government is that there should be an effect Opposition.

The elimination of parties, and the substitution of one party, which is the declared aim of the Prime Minister and Sir John Simon, is precisely the system which Hitler has established in Germany.

That explains Mr. MacDonald's recent eulogy of dictatorships, which he admired because "they had awakened something in the hearts of the people which had given a new vision and a new energy to pursue national affairs."

Pauperism Figures Rising.
Liberals and Labourists who gave at least five million votes to the National Government at the general election rightly feel that they have been betrayed. They are not prepared to sacrifice their political convictions to keep a Tory Government in power.

The second reason for the unpopularity of the Government is found in its legislative and administrative record.

The only thing that Ministers can think of by which to advertise themselves is the reduction in the number of the unemployed. But little credit is due to the Government for this. There is a slight world movement in trade recovery in which this country is sharing.

But while the Government are talking about the reduction of the number of unemployed they are silent about the large increase in pauperism. Every month the number of persons in receipt of Poor Law relief is rising. The figures of outdoor relief for England and Wales for November show an increase of 6.2 per cent. over a year ago, and for Scotland 12.3 per cent.

Our foreign trade for the first eleven months of the last year was nearly £200,000,000 below that of a similar period immediately before.
Only £20,000,000, it is true, is ac-this Government came into power.
counted for by the fall in our export trade, but the large reduction of imports has brought our cargo shipping to ruin.

The most serious and just criticism of the Government is that it shows neither decision nor leadership. In international affairs it is content to dance to the tune played by foreign countries.

In home affairs it has lacked a vigorous and constructive policy of social reconstruction, particularly on unemployment.

Criticism by Contrast.

The Conservative Central Office
pay no attention to the ruling.

Leaflets issued from that office attack the Labour Government by the simple method of comparing their "failures" with the "achievements" in the same fields of the National Government.

One leaflet is headed "From Chaos to Confidence: A Great Record."

It makes contrasts on unemployment, trade balance, exports and imports.

Another headed "Then and Now," is composed entirely of comparisons.

These leaflets do not bear the imprint of the Conservative headquarters. They are propaganda for the National Government.

Trainer and Churchgoer.

Mr. Colledge Leader, who is taking over the care of Lord Derby's racehorses at Stanley House, has at present about 40 horses in his own stables at Machell House, near the Jubilee Clock at Newmarket.

His nephew, Mr. Ted Leader, who won the National on Sprig, in 1927, may apply for a trainer's licence and move into Machell House. If he does, four Leaders will be training at Newmarket simultaneously.

Mr. Colledge Leader is a cheerful, ruddy-faced man. He has a fine record of past successes on the Turf.

He is a strict churchgoer and insists on his stable boys attending morning service every Sunday.

Honour for Mollison

The Guild of Air Pilots and Air Navigators recently awarded the Johnston Memorial Trophy for 1933 to Mr. J. A. Mollison.

The award is in recognition of his navigation of the North Atlantic in 1932 and of the South and North Atlantic last year.

The Trophy was presented to him at the Skinners' Hall. The Guild held a special meeting for this ceremony, and for the installation of the new Master, Mr. F. E.
Guest, and Deputy-Master, the Marquess of Clydesdale.

The trophy was founded in memory of Squadron-Leader Johnston, who was killed in the R101 disaster.

It is awarded annually for the best feat of aerial navigation.

Appropriate Title . . .

Lord Huntingfield, the new Governor of Victoria, has an appropriate title.

He is a keen hunting man. When with the 13th Hussars in India before the war he was one of the best Army polo players. Nowadays his sports are chiefly fishing, winter sports and shooting. His skill as a shot is hereditary. His grandfather stood fourth in the list of the ten best shots in England.

Lord Huntingfield is Australian born, takes a great interest in agriculture, and, a former Parliamentary Private Secretary to the Board of Trade, has a working knowledge of Imperial economies.

He is 50 and an Old Wellington-ian. During the general strike he ran the Westminster Underground Station with great efficiency.

The Art of Persuasion

Superintendent Percy Savage, who leaves Scotland Yard this month typifies the man-about-town detective.

He is good-looking and of athletic build. Casca he has investigated rank from espionage to murder.

He has the knack of persuading persons to tell him their troubles.
Patrick Mahon, the murderer of Emily Kaye, found that after an hour or two, in Savage's company he simply had to talk. Savage let him talk on. Two words too many cost Mahon his life.

Savage unmasked a network of German spies during the war. They also discovered too late there was something behind the charming manner of this man who was such a genial companion.

His father was a detective-inspecter and Savage himself was born in the police station at Acton.

RECREIO JUNIORS WIN

SECOND DIVISION.

Navy Draw Last League Game.

LINCOLNS WELL HELD

At Kowloon the Navy completed their Junior league fixtures with a creditable draw against the Lincolns, each side scoring once.

The game was very fast, the Navy having slightly the better advantage although the Lincolns had more scoring chances, their close forward play spilling good approach work.

Having most of the play, the Navy took the lead after 15 minutes, Potts scoring after a good through pass from McNeil. Wardle made good saves from Glass and McNeil, and in their first rear attack the Lincolns should have equalised when McGuinness shot over from a good position. A few minutes later, McGuinness failed again, shooting wide. Near the interval Wardle made a glorious save and Sargent shot yards off with Wardle on the ground.

Immediately after the resumption, good work by Glayton and Toynce ended in Harper netting a simple goal.

Navy:—Lynch, Grant, Edmunds, Burdon, West, Chamberlain, Chappel, Potts, Glass, McNeil and Sargent. Lincolns:—Wardle, Steans, Colclough, Maughan, Worrell, Robson, Clayton, Harper, Evans, McGuinness and Toynce.

Artillery Nearly Drop A Point.

BAD LUCK AGAINST ATHLETIC

Although dogged by ill-luck when several good efforts went astray, the Artillery ran out winners in their game with the Athletic by the odd goal in three at the Valley yesterday.

The first half consisted mainly of shots at goal by the Artillery, and they were very unfortunate in not being able to score. From the commencement of the second half the Artillery had matters all their own way, Hardy running through to score the first goal soon after the resumption. The Athletic then broke away and, when awarded a free kick, Lau So sent the ball into the Artillery goalmouth for Chow Tun-cheung to score during the melee. Sell tried a shot from the wing and Lee Hoi-chun failed to gather it, Hardy running in to head the Artillery's second goal.

Athletic:—Lee Hoi-chun; Cheong Ip-piu, Chin Schuen, Lip Chun-chai, Lau So, Chan Sui-ming, Ip Tun-poh, Chow Tun-cheung, Chan Cheung-yin, Pam Kam-hung and Kwo Ting-wing. Artillery:—Woods, Clancy, Price, Laine, Hunt, Scott, Edmunds, Smith, Hopkins, Hardy and Sell.

Club Score First But Lose 5 To 1.

THREE PENALTIES CONCEDED

South China consolidated their position at the head of the Second league with a 5-1 victory over the Club on the latter's ground.

The Club played only ten men and the Chinese were much superior, most of the play taking place in the Club half.

A remarkable feature of the game was that three penalties were awarded to South China, each of them being converted.

With two minutes the Club took the lead, Chapman sending a neat pass for Duncan to net. South China quickly equalised, a penalty against Gamble being converted by Ching Chi-ying. They then took the lead when Ng Po-ku raced away for Kai Shui-wing to score with a terrific drive. The Chinese went further ahead when Kai Shui-wing netted after a goalmouth melee.

After the interval Ralton gave away another penalty and Ng Po-ku scored. South China continued to exert pressure and a third penalty, against McKellar, was converted by Kam Sik-wan.

Club:—Farrow, Ralton, Boyd, Gamble, Neale, McKellar, Chapman, Brown, Duncan and Sloan. Ching Chi-ying, Yu Hing-yuen, Yan Wa-ling, Kam Tak-po, George Lung, Chow Kwan-kong, Leung Tat-wing, Kam Sik-wai, Kai Shui-wing and Ng Po-ku.

Borderers Outclass Young Indians.

EARLY GOALS WIN GAME

The Borderers outclassed the Young Indians at the Valley yesterday when they won by four clear goals.

Pallister scored the Borderers' first goal within the first ten minutes, and, from the centre, the soldiers again ran through for Morris to take a fine centre from Searle to score the second goal. Almost immediately after the commencement of the second half John, the Borderers' outside-left, scored a fine goal from the wing. The fourth goal was added by Morris just before time.

Borderers:—Williams, Herbert, Jenkins, Wheelan, Underwood, Williams, Searle, Marshall, Morris, Pallister and Johns.

Young Indians:—Ahmed, O. Omar, Ramzan, Baker, Azim, Marker, Yusuf, Rizeck, A. Omar, Hamet and Arcull.

THIRD DIVISION.

RECREIO'S LUCKY POINT

The Recreio were fortunate to share the points with South China at Caroline Hill, although they held a goal lead for 68 minutes of the game.

Alves opened the scoring for the Recreio and the Chinese equalised two minutes before the end after innumerable scoring chances when Hai Wu-kwong scored from a penalty.

MEDICALS JUST WIN

In a very even game at Happy Valley the Medical defeated the R.A.F. by a goal scored by Adams just before the interval.

GAME POSTPONED

Owing to the arrival yesterday of the Troopship Nauralia, and the consequent pressure of work devolved on the Service Corps, the fixture between the Lincolns and the R.A.S.C. was postponed.

The Radio had the best of a poor game at the Valley yesterday when they beat the University by the only goal of the game. The game promised to result in a goalless draw until a few moments before time Henib broke away to pass to Tavara who scored a fine goal in the closing minutes.

MR. ROPER BARRETT.

New L. T. A. Chairman.

At the meeting of the council of the Lawn Tennis Association H. Roper Barrett was elected chairman for the ensuing year, a fitting reward for his services as non-playing captain of the British Cup team.

He played in the first Davis Cup match in New York in 1900, when only America and the British Isles competed for the trophy. He was holder of the men's doubles at Wimbledon in 1909, 1911, and 1912.

HOCKEY

Miss E. Bonnar missed a glorious opportunity for the Hong Kong Ladies just before the close of the first half.

The Saints opened the second half well, but fell away to allow the champions to press continuously. After having forced many corners, from which they were unable to find the net, Miss Boll centred the ball Miss J. Churchill, who was unmarked in the goalmouth, and the inside left scored the decider in the last minute of the game.

The St. Andrew's Ladies played a magnificent game, but the Hong Kong Ladies showed the better stamina. The defence, especially Miss E. Landolt, was outstanding. The Hong Kong Ladies forwards were erratic in front of goal and missed many opportunities, and it was the defence that proved the strength of the team.

A BRITISH LION - GAINSBOROUGH Picture

THE TIGER OF TIBET

That year there was a special supplementary gazette published after the ordinary list of Birthday Honours, in which Major and Brevet Lieut. Colonel Geoffrey Barracough, D.S.O., Royal Engineers, was appointed a Knight Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India. There were few people in Simla who understood the reason, but there was one fact of which they were all aware, and that was the talk of every household from Chota Simla to Jutogh. This fact was that when Sir Geoffrey and Lady Barracough appeared at a subsequent Viceregal ball there was no one present, not even that American millionaire who had purposely come out to India to buy up the greatest treasures which Imre Schwoiger could produce, who had even seen anything quite so superb as Lady Barracough's emerald necklace.

The scene is now laid at Simla railway-station. "And now, sahib, you and the lady-sahib will be returning to England. It is right. Each one to his own place. But my heart grieves at the parting, for have we not done the work of men. But I am proud to have shared some evils with the lady-sahib, for great is she among women, born to be a mother of men." The big Pathan saluted for the last time; then he entered the carriage. "But now the 'the-rain' is off, and I return, too to my country. Pray God, sahib, we may meet again. But now, farewell!"

The train snorted out of the station carrying Khan Bahadur Sher Khan with it on its journey to the Plains.

"To think that he's gone, Geoffrey. I can hardly believe it. You know, I really love that fierce old warrior, and I'm sure you're not jealous."

"No, darling, not a bit. And you keep some affection over for Raj Bahadur?" Jogaroo too if you like!"

"Yes, dear, faithful Jogaroo. I suppose he will be all right in his village?"

"Rather. He is established for life, and will be the greatest force in the Baspa Valley for many a long year."

They had now reached the Mall, where they turned towards the Cecil Hotel.

And that night at dinner Geoffrey held up his glass. "Here's a toast, dear. The man to whom we owe our happiness—the 'Tiger of Tibet'!"

CONTRACT BRIDGE

NOTES

By "CLAY"

[These notes are written by one of the Colony's Leading Bridge players who is prepared to solve any problem for readers. All communications should be addressed to "Contract Bridge" c/o The Sunday Herald.]

Article No. 6.

It is a fairly generally accepted principle that third hand should not open the bidding after two passes unless his holding is some what stronger than the conventional Dealer's opening of 2½ aces. The argument being that as the dealer has not bid a bare minimum of five playing tricks in conjunction with this holding will not produce game, and may lead to trouble. As a general rule this is sound but if slavishly adhered to, tends to make the game mechanical. Bridge is not an exact science and if players treat it as such they will lose a lot of fun and more important, good opportunities. In duplicate matches with sound players risks are not justified but in ordinary play imagination must be used and the personal element given due weight.

Another consideration, which must influence third hand is the danger of finding high cards on his left, after two passes. If, third passes, the fourth player with quite good cards may throw in. Should third open, fourth can bid freely and possibly start a dangerous rivalry which ends unfavourably to third hand and his partner.

With strong major suit holdings it is fairly safe to open in the third hand position, particularly if a call can be made in spades. With strength principally in the minors, it is better to pass.

The safest rule is to value the hand carefully for defence. If the distribution is such that opponents are unlikely to make game in any suit, you can open with the value of about six playing tricks.

Be very chary indeed of opening when your opponents are a partial score, unless you have considerable strength. You can always come in on the next round, if they try to get away with a cheap contract.

Here are two hands and a query.

Neither side vulnerable. South and West no bid. North one. No Trump. In attack this hand appears somewhat weak but it is well balanced for defence. An opening bid on this type of hand will rarely come to much grief. If East happens to be very strong he will bid in any case, but over a one No Trump he will find it hard to arrive at a game contract. In this case he says no bid but South jumps in the contract to 3 no Trumps, which can be made comfortably. Should North pass East will throw in.

OPPONENTS OF MACHADO

Havana, Cuba.

Members of the ABC Society found the remains of 10 men, believed by authorities to have been killed by the Army Lieutenant, Diaz Diaz, after an abortive revolution in August, 1931, while digging in the banks of Lake Piedra near Havana.

Two skeletons were identified as those of Dr. Andres Baccalao and Jose Hernandez, prominent members of a group opposing the regime of former President Gerardo Machado.

Diaz Diaz was killed in May, 1932, by a bomb received in a registered mail package. Four men held in connection with his death were later killed by a military guard.—Router.

BRITAIN COMMENCES TRADE WAR

Retaliation Against French Quotas.

ADDITIONAL TARIFFS FROM TUESDAY

London, Yesterday.

As was announced by the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Walter Runciman, in the House of Commons, on January 29, His Majesty's Government has informed the French Government that unless the quotas for United Kingdom goods were fully restored they would be compelled to take retaliatory action by imposing additional duties on a range of French products.

As the quotas have not been fully restored, an Order has now been made, under Section 12 of the Import Duties Act, imposing a duty of 20 per cent. "ad valorem" over and above the existing Customs duties upon certain classes of goods produced or manufactured in France, with effect from next Tuesday.

The Order has been framed with a view to effecting a reduction in imports into the United Kingdom, from France, as near as may be, equivalent to the reduction in the United Kingdom exports to France resulting from the differential quota restrictions which are still maintained.

Classes of goods covered by the Order are set out, and include articles of apparel of all kinds, complete or incomplete, and shaped material for making into apparel; boots and shoes etc.; feathers; artificial flowers, foliage and fruit; and articles incorporating them; fur, skins and goods manufactured wholly or partly of fur and skin; and goods made wholly or partly of silk.—British Wireless Service.

AIR MAIL CONTRACTS CANCELLED

Roosevelt Discovers Frauds.

U.S. ARMY ORDERED TO CARRY THE MAILS

Washington, Yesterday.

The United States Senate has ordered the arrest of Mr. MacCracken, who was Assistant Secretary of Commerce in ex-President Hoover's Administration, and who should have appeared to answer a charge of contempt yesterday. He has disappeared.

The action is connected with air mail contracts scandal. It is alleged that important papers were removed from Mr. MacCracken's file when the Senate Investigation Committee wanted to see them.

President Roosevelt yesterday cancelled all domestic air mail contracts. President Roosevelt's order applies to all domestic air mail services but does not include the Pan-American Airways.

It becomes effective on February 19, after which the Army air service will carry the mail.

The Army has promised to engage any air mail pilots who are dropped by private companies. The aviation companies' officials are stunned by the drastic nature of the order and declare that they are unable to operate solely on the revenue derived from passenger services. They have predicted the virtual paralysis of air passenger traffic pending the resumption of private air mail services.—Router.
